GIFTS OF STATE

SECONDARY

TOPIC: American Diplomacy

CONNECTION TO PRESIDENT GEORGE H.W. BUSH:

President George H.W. Bush received numerous gifts of state from countries all over the world. These gifts are representations of the relationships that Bush strived to build with foreign countries while he was in public service.

Gifts from foreign governments are property of the United States and accepted on behalf of the nation

CONSTITUTION CONNECTION:

The Constitution gives the president the power to make treaties, which need to be ratified by two-thirds of the Senate. Additionally, the president is accorded those foreign-affairs functions not otherwise granted to Congress or shared with the Senate.

Thus, the president can control the formation and communication of foreign policy and can direct the nation's diplomatic corps.

PROGRAM MATERIALS:

PILLARS TO LIVE BY PRIMARY RESOURCE (page S3): 1 set per student or student group

SECURITY BRIEFING (page S4): 1 set per student or student group

NATIONAL SECURITY REVIEW

MEMORANDUM FOR MY FELLOW AMERICANS

Subject: The success of the United States is dependent upon you, the people.

My fellow Americans, cultivating diplomatic relationships with countries across the world is important to the safety and security of the United States. We value our foreign neighbors and know that creating relationships with other nations strengthens the influence of the United States across the globe. The George H.W. Bush Presidential Library and Museum has multiple artifacts that I received from other nations during my Presidency. I wish these were gifts I could have taken home with me, but gifts of state are property of the United States, and I accepted these gifts on behalf of you and our nation. Unfortunately, when transporting these artifacts from Washington D.C. to my museum, there were some mix ups. Valued Americans, I need your help in identifying these gifts and figuring out what country to send my "thank you" notes. Each gift symbolizes the diplomatic relationship I have worked hard at growing with a foreign country. Thank you for your service to our country.

Good luck, the future of our foreign friendships is in your hands.

Sincerely,
